

Alan Easter got more than he bargained for on a recent golf trip to La Manga.

Easter, Hanover's Pat Field and MNFA's Damien Bradbury clearly took a detour via the 19th hole before rather than the usual apres golf, as by the time Easter reached the 11th, he had seemingly lost control of his buggy.

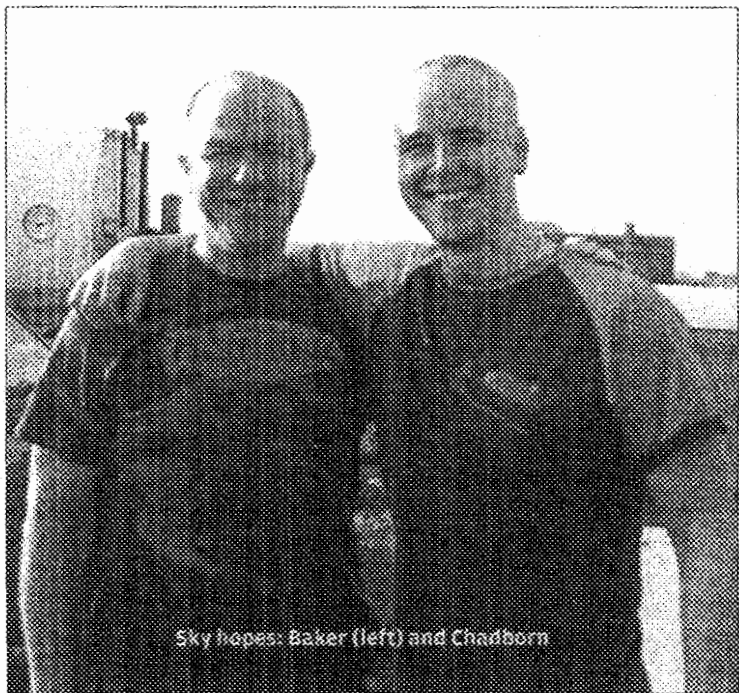

Although Bunny will not admit to how much beer was consumed on said trip ("Tour rules apply"), these pictures seem to indicate that he was probably not playing quite on par. 1,000 euros and much hilarity later, the scooter was recovered.

His wallet, mobile and car keys were not, still residing at the bottom of the lake.

Down to earth

CBK principals Peter Chadborn and Andy Baker have taken the plunge to raise money for charity by skydiving from 10,000 feet.

After 30 seconds of free-falling, they parachuted down and landed intact 10 minutes later. Chadders has raised £851 for the NSPCC so far but is hopeful that the tighter sponsors among you will cough up more.

Sky hopes: Baker (left) and Chadborn